

Miami Shores Presbyterian Church School

There is a commitment from the School Commission, the Pastor and the Headmaster to strengthen the relationship between the Church and the School, and progress has been made toward this effort.

The Senior and Associate Pastors teach biblical principles in the classrooms once a week which contributes greatly to aligning the mission and vision of the school and the church.

The school is to be commended for creative use of physical space that has limitations. Color contributes to enhancing a child friendly environment and the integration of outdoor learning space has added novelty to the learning experience.

A comprehensive marketing strategy that involves both internal and external efforts has had a positive impact on enquiries.

The mission of the school and the intentions of the Collaborative Classrooms program which has been implemented in the school, are very clearly exemplified in the conduct of the students at Miami Shores Presbyterian Church School. The students are noticeably respectful and polite in their interactions with adults and peers.

It is very apparent that the success of each individual child is at the center of program choice and classroom practice.

The progress monitoring of each child and corresponding support or enrichment provided, reflects a high degree of regard for the learning of each individual child at the school.

The changes in the academic program have been extremely positive and have raised the standards in very obvious ways. Determined implementation, and the investment of the faculty in the associated professional development, reflect the school's focus on what is needed to benefit the students.

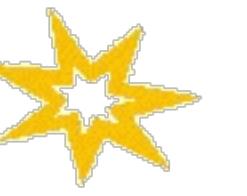

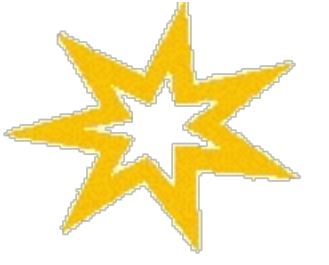

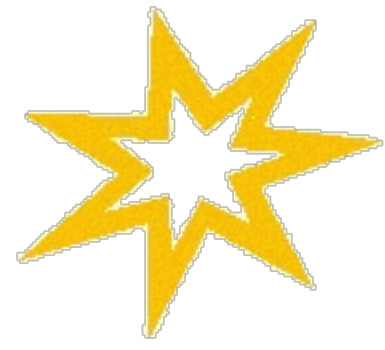

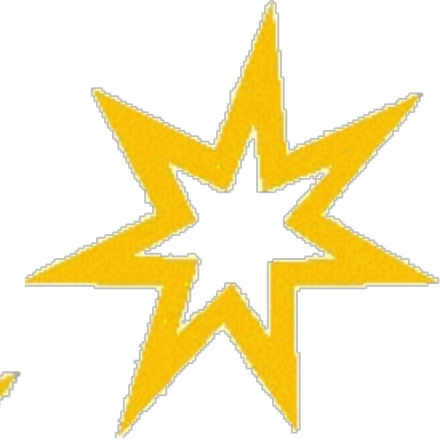

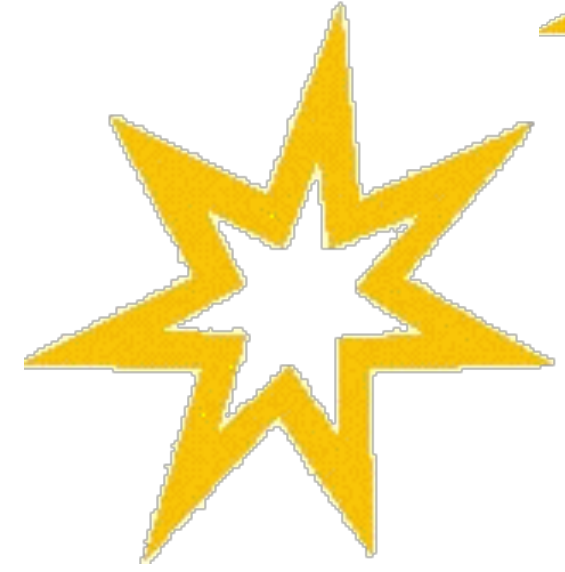

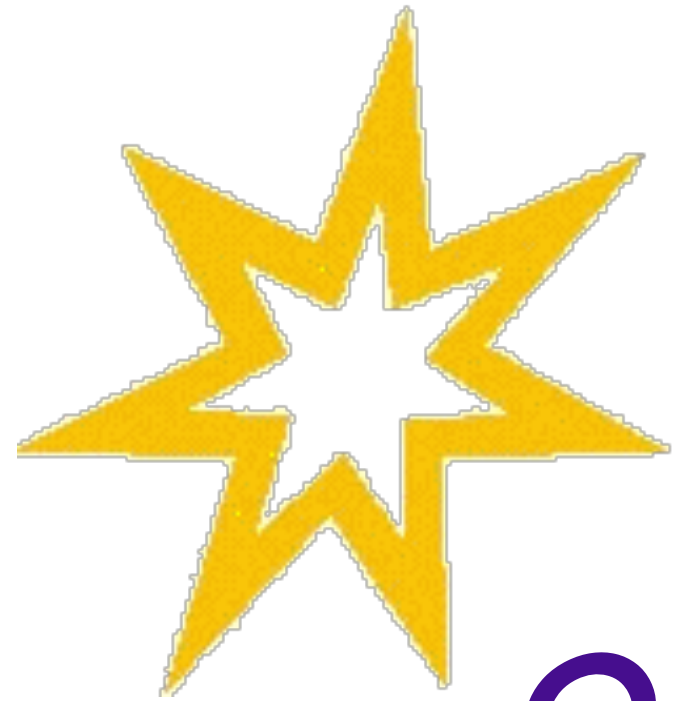

The leadership and vision of the Headmaster has had a major impact on the school community and has brought positive change which is validated by parents, faculty and staff. The confidence and respect that he engenders has enabled a pace of change that was necessary and is exceptional.

The Headmaster and Accounting Manager/Business Officer have diligently implemented strategies to improve financial accountability and reporting.
